Dear Nolo fans,

We're going digital! Beginning with this catalog Nolo will publish one printed catalog, the "Complete Books-in-Print" (formerly the Fall Catalog), annually, in late May, in time for Book Expo America. But don't worry—we don't want to make ordering a chore for you, so we're taking extra measures to ensure you don't miss out on any new editions or updates we announce throughout the year. Here's how to find the latest Nolo book information:

- Look inside this catalog for "Next Edition" dates. We've added them in the bibliographic section of every title
- Find an interactive, Internet-based version of this catalog, plus a downloadable PDF, at our dedicated URL on Edelweiss (<http://edelweiss.abovethetree.com/browse/nolo>)
- Stay tuned for our winter and spring supplemental frontlist catalogs; these will go live on Edelweiss in mid September (winter frontlist) and early January (spring frontlist)
- And don't forget! We always post the latest PDF version of our catalog on www.nolo.com (www.nolo.com/trade/catalog.html)

What are the three main benefits of going digital?

First, publishing two catalogs in digital-only format reduces paper waste, and Nolo is pleased to support a program that lessens environmental impact. Next, by offering an interactive, online catalog we extend our reach to a wider group of users—from librarians to media to individual book buyers. Finally, flexibility. Title updates, such as publication date changes, feed automatically to the Edelweiss catalog, which means users have instant access to these updates.

Nolo is now partnered with Edelweiss

The Edelweiss Interactive Catalog is an internet-based tool that is FREE to all catalog users. It functions much like a traditional hard copy catalog. Unique, built-in features allow users to:

- Access up-to-date bibliographic content
- View enhanced marketing content, including cover images, reviews, comp titles, and book excerpts
- Mark up the catalog using their own notes, tags and ratings
- Search titles by keyword
- Create, save and export orders

So, hang onto this catalog until May 2011! Until then, we're glad to have you on board with us for our newest online venture. Happy—and easy—browsing!

New for fall

A to Z and 50-state guides, plus a generous helping of real-life advice

This fall, Nolo announces three new books to help business people and nonprofits decipher the language of the law, and assist divorced dads in making one of life's toughest transitions. With these latest offerings we provide tailored, reliable information in Nolo's trademark plain-English style.

Contracts is an indispensable guide for any business person who regularly works with contracts. It defines common contract terms, points out which clauses are most important, explains how to change or end a contract, and more. Armed with this A to Z guide, business people will be able to negotiate—and sign—contracts with confidence.

With its focus on cooperation and collaboration, Being a Great Divorced Father shows divorced dads how to meet new parenting challenges and create an extended family in which the kids are always front and center.

Nonprofit Fundraising Registration: The 50-State Guide gives nonprofits all the information they need to comply with the complicated and varied charitable solicitation laws of every U.S. state. It covers exemptions from registration, initial and annual filing requirements, and how to register in each of the states.

Also inside, find 19 new editions in nearly every category of the law, updated to reflect the latest legal changes.

Helps fathers maintain (or build) a close, positive relationship with their kids during and after divorce

Being a Great Divorced Father

Real-Life Advice From a Dad Who's Been There

by Paul Mandelstein

Millions of dads have gone through divorce. What lies ahead for these divorced fathers is a challenging process of changing their marital status and, along with it, their relationships with their children.

Being a Great Divorced Father contains practical advice for fathers who wish to maintain a great relationship with their kids while going through a divorce—and offers strategies for building a new life after divorce, in which the kids are front and center. It addresses:

- creating a new home and making room for the kids
- managing babysitters, after-school care and other details of daily life
- sharing custody between two parents/homes
- creating and enforcing house rules about homework, recreation, bedtime, and the like
- communicating with the ex, including establishing boundaries and finding ways to agree
- settling legal and custody issues
- dating and remarriage

Being a Great Divorced Father focuses on helping fathers create an extended family through cooperation and collaboration with former spouses and through prioritizing the children. The book contains plenty of insightful examples of families who have met the challenges of divorce and parenting.

KEEPING CUSTODY DECISIONS IN YOUR OWN HANDS

The issue of custody can bring up a lot of concerns for divorcing dads. For example, some fathers are afraid that if they give full custody to their ex-wife, the children will become estranged from them. Fathers with very young children may worry that they don't have the skills to care for the kids successfully. Or they may simply worry that they don't have the time to deal with the day-to-day activities of the children's lives.

Decisions around the issue of custody are deeply personal and you'll need to think about what's best for you, your ex, and your kids. But one thing that's clearly best for your kids is a custody arrangement that you work out with your ex, rather than judge orders.

Nonprofit Fundraising Registration

The 50-State Guide

by Stephen Fishman, J.D.

When nonprofit organizations solicit funds from out-of-state donors by phone, letter, email, the Internet, or any other manner, they must follow the law. Currently, 39 states and the District of Columbia have some type of registration requirement for charitable solicitations, and other states are considering adopting such laws.

There are over 1.9 million nonprofit organizations operating in the U.S. today, and most of them need solid information about fundraising registration.

Nonprofit Fundraising Registration is the nonprofit's 50-state guide to the complicated and varied registration requirements for fundraising, including:

- exemptions from registration
- how to register in the different states
- initial and annual filing requirements
- other crucial information nonprofits need to know to legally fundraise outside of their home state.

Unique to its category, Nonprofit Fundraising Registration provides the background information and explains the registration process for each state, including line-by-line instructions for the Unified Registration Statement, contact information for each state, and instructions on filing requirements.

CONNECTICUT

Governing Law

Connecticut has a charitable solicitations law that is administered by the Connecticut Department of Consumer Protection ("DCP"). The law is codified at General Statutes of Connecticut §§ 21a-175 through 21a-1901. You can find it on the state website.

State Website

The Connecticut Department of Consumer Protection has a website at www.ct.gov/ag/site/default.asp You can download state forms and access the state law from this website. It contains little other information.

Registration Requirement

Any organization that solicits contributions for charitable purposes in Connecticut must register with the Department of Consumer Protection prior to the commencement of solicitation and must remain registered while it solicits funds in the state.

Exemptions from Registration

Connecticut exempts the following groups and individuals from registration. It has a high exemption ceiling for small nonprofits--$50,000 per year. Here are the exempt from registration:

“Nolo publications...guide people simply through the how, when, where and why of the law.” —THE WASHINGTON POST

YOUR LEGAL COMPANION

Since 1971 Nolo's goal has been simple. Make America's legal system accessible to everyone. Today we are the country's leading publisher of plain-English legal and business tools. Our website (www.nolo.com), books, software, online legal forms and eProducts help individuals, businesses and nonprofits solve their legal problems. Nolo also offers a national lawyer directory with detailed profiles of attorney advertisers.
