Hallucinations 9780307402189 7/2/13 Canada

Summary: From the bestselling author of Musicophilia and The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat, a provocative investigation into hallucinations: their many guises, their physiological sources, and their personal and cultural impact.

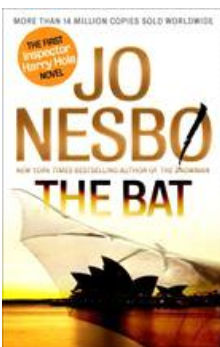

For most people, hallucinations imply madness. But non-psychotic hallucinations are common: from the simple geometric shapes that we see when we rub our eyes to the intricate zigzags of a visual migraine, hallucinations take many forms. Throughout history, hallucin...

Author Bio: Oliver Sacks is a practicing physician and the author of twelve books, including The Mind's Eye, Musicophilia, The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat, and Awakenings (which inspired the Oscar-nominated film). He lives in New York City, where he is a professor of neurology at the NYU School of Medicine.

Summary: The story of the Mexican-American War-one of the most controversial events in nineteenth-century American history-and of how it divided the country and had a profound impact on the political lives of James Polk, Henry Clay, and Abraham Lincoln.

Our 1846 war with Mexico was a blatant land grab provoked by President James Polk. And while it secured the entire Southwest and California for America, it also exacerbated regional tensions over slavery, created the first significant antiwar mo...

Summary: Nancy Mitford's first novel, a comedy set in a Scottish castle, long out of print and now reissued with an introduction by Julian Fellowes, creator of Downton Abbey.

In Highland Fling, a set of completely incompatible and hilariously eccentric characters collide in a Scottish castle, where bright young things play pranks on their stodgy elders until the frothy plot climaxes in ghost sightings and a dramatic fire. Inspired in part by Mitford's own youthful infatuation with a Scottish ar...

Summary: A big, beautiful hardcover omnibus edition of Jules Verne's most beloved novels: the three thrilling tales of fabulous journeys under, through, and around the earth. EVERYMAN'S LIBRARY CLASSICS.

Jules Verne was one of the great pioneers of the science-fiction genre, and is said to be the second-most-translated author in the world, after Agatha Christie. Born in 1828, he wrote brilliantly about space, air, and underwater travel long before airplanes, submarines, and space ships had been...

Author Bio: JULES VERNE, the "father of science fiction," was born in Nantes, France, in 1828 and died in 1905. He began writing while studying to be a lawyer; when his father discovered this, he cut him off and Verne was forced to support himself as a stockbroker. Victor Hugo and Alexandre Dumas offered the young Verne writing advice, and eventually he found a publisher who brought out his first adventure novel, Five Weeks in a Balloon, in 1863. Set in Africa, it was an instant hit and made Ver...

Summary: A literary adventure set in New England, Janice Clark's gothic debut chronicles one hundred years of a once prosperous seafaring dynasty.

"Dark and beautifully written, Janice Clark's journey into family history captures the salty bonds of blood and sea, with all that lies beneath: from long-held secrets to a broken covenant with the whale. As cautionary a tale as Melville's, this is nevertheless a woman's odyssey, one that creates a kind of longing that lingers far beyond its final pa..."

Summary: From one of our most beloved authors, a fascinating excursion into the history behind the place we call home—now richly illustrated with more than two hundred images in full color

Bill Bryson and his family live in a Victorian parsonage in a part of England where nothing of any great significance has happened since the Romans decamped. But, struck one day by the thought that "history mostly is masses of people doing ordinary things," he began to consider how very little he knew about th...

Author Bio: BILL BRYSON's bestselling books include A Walk in the Woods, I'm a Stranger Here Myself, In a Sunburned Country, A Short History of Nearly Everything (which earned him the 2004 Aventis Prize), The Life and Times of the Thunderbolt Kid, and At Home. He lives in England with his wife and children.

Summary: An inspiring and epic tale of loss and redemption about two American servicemen: a Marine Corps pilot who was shot down in WWII and the modern-day soldier determined to bring home his remains six decades later

Major George Eyster V comes from a long line of military officers, dating back to the Revolutionary War. Army service was George's family legacy, but his tour of duty in Iraq left him disillusioned and questioning. He was making plans to end his army career but was offered a post...

Author Bio: BRYAN BENDER got his start in journalism as a writer for Inside the Army and as a military correspondent for publications such as Jane's Defense Weekly. He is the national security reporter for The Boston Globe, a job for which he has traveled the globe covering operations at military outposts and training bases, aboard submarines and warships, and in combat aircraft over hostile territory.

Summary: A uniquely original encounter with one of the most compelling and resonant stories ever told-the story of God's command to Abraham to sacrifice his son Isaac. A history and meditation that illuminates the myriad ways in which it has been interpreted and understood down through the ages.

A mere nineteen lines in the book of Genesis, the story rests at the heart of the history, literature, theology, and sacred rituals of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam, and for more than two millennia, p...

Summary: From Pulitzer Prize-winner Mark Strand comes an exquisitely witty and poignant series of prose poems. Sometimes appearing as pure prose, sometimes as impure poetry, but always with Strand's clarity and simplicity of style, they are like riddles, their answers vanishing just as they appear within reach. Fable, domestic satire, meditation, joke, and fantasy all come together in what is arguably the liveliest, most entertaining book that Strand has yet written.

Author Bio: MARK STRAND is the author of twelve earlier books of poems. Summary: A fascinating new understanding of the birth of American religious freedom and of how Islam shaped the thinking of the Founding Fathers.

In 1765, eleven years before composing the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson bought a Qur'an. His interest in Islam did not belie his personal disdain for the faith, a sentiment then rampant among his Protestant contemporaries. But unlike most of them, by 1776 Jefferson could imagine Muslims as future citizens of his new country. In this o...

Summary: The literally extraordinary story of how Denmark saved its Jews from the Nazis in World War II.

In the entire ghastly history of the Holocaust, only two "good" stories stand out, and this is one of them. Denmark, under German Occupation, but with its king and government intact, did something no other country in Western Europe even tried to do. Knowing that German command was coming in 1943 to round up their Jews (there were 7,000 of them) for deportation to the camps, they said no. The...

Summary: A beautiful collection of verse—both light and dark, elegiac and affirmative—from one of our most admired poets.

The title Nothing by Design is a phrase taken from Salter's villanelle "Complaint for Absolute Divorce," in which we're asked to entertain the thought of a no-fault universe. The wary search for peace, personal and public, is a constant theme in poems as varied as "Our Friends the Enemy," about the Christmas football match between German and British soldiers in 1914; "The Af..."

Summary: A groundbreaking history that considers Pearl Harbor from the Japanese perspective-and is certain to revolutionize how we think of the war in the Pacific.

When Japan attacked the United States in 1941, argues Eri Hotta, its leaders, in large part, understood they were entering a conflict they were bound to lose. Availing herself of rarely consulted material, Hotta poses essential questions overlooked by historians in the seventy years since: Why did these men-military men, civilian pol...

Summary: A riveting, revelatory, and moving account of the author's history of anxiety and the history of the efforts by scientists, philosophers, artists, and writers to understand anxiety.

As recently as thirty years ago, anxiety did not exist as a diagnostic category. Today, it is the most common form of officially classified mental illness. Drawing on his lifelong battle with anxiety, Stossel gives us an astonishing history, at once intimate and authoritative, of the efforts to understand a...
