Summary: Easy Rawlins is back (almost literally from the dead after the car wreck that ended Blonde Faith, his last outing) and cruising the hippified streets of the Sunset Strip circa 1967, in search of a young black man who has gone missing-and maybe of his own rebirth.

Walter Mosley burst on the literary scene in 1990 with Devil in a Blue Dress (recently named one of the L.A. Times's best novels about L.A.), the first Easy Rawlins mystery, a combustible and irresistible mixture of Raymond Ch...

Author Bio: WALTER MOSLEY is the author of more than forty-one books, most notably eleven Easy Rawlins mysteries, the first of which, Devil in a Blue Dress, was made into an acclaimed film starring Denzel Washington. Always Outnumbered was an HBO film starring Laurence Fishburne, adapted from his first Socrates Fortlow novel. A native of Los Angeles and a graduate of Goddard College, he holds an MFA from CCNY and lives in Brooklyn, New York. He is the winner of numerous awards, including an O. H...

Summary: That the greatly admired novelist Kate Christensen has turned to the memoir form after six novels makes this book an event. Readers of memoirs of high literary quality, particularly those with food themes—most conspicuously Ruth Reichl's Comfort Me with Apples and Gabrielle Hamilton's Blood, Bones, and Butter—as well as admirers of M. F. K. Fisher and Laurie Colwin will be a large and eager audience.

This memoir derives from Kate's popular foodcentric blog (<http://katechristensen.wordpress.com>).

Author Bio: KATE CHRISTENSEN is the author of six previous novels, most recently The Astral. The Great Man won the 2008 PEN/Faulkner Award. She has written reviews and essays for numerous publications, most recently The New York Times Book Review, Bookforum, Tin House, Elle, and Open City. She also has a new column in The Wall Street Journal, "With a Twist." Her blog can be accessed at: <http://katechristensen.wordpress.com>

Summary: The figure of Hamlet haunts our culture like the Ghost haunts him. Arguably, no literary work, not even the Bible, is more familiar to us than Shakespeare's Hamlet. Everyone knows at least six words from the play; often people know many more. Yet the play-Shakespeare's longest-is more than "passing strange" and becomes deeply unfamiliar when considered closely.

Stay, Illusion! is a passionate encounter with the play that affords an original look at this work of literature and the prism...

Summary: Carl Hiaasen is back doing what he does best: spinning a wickedly funny, fiercely pointed tale in which the greedy, the corrupt, and the degraders of pristine land in Florida-now, in the Bahamas too-get their comeuppance in mordantly ingenious, diabolically entertaining fashion.

Andrew Yancy-late of the Miami Police, soon-to-be-late of the Key West Police-has a human arm in his freezer. There's a logical (Hiaasenian) explanation for that, but not for how and why it parted from its own...

Summary: A stunning debut novel-unexpected, tautly written, suspenseful-that touches on some of the most profound questions we have about war as it tells us a haunting story of a single mother, and her Navy SEAL son.

It begins in May 2011: Sara's son Jason has been missing for nine days in the aftermath of a SEAL mission. Out of devotion to him, Sara-smart, modest, tough-minded-has made herself knowledgeable about things military, and, as a freelance editor, she frequently works for Washington ...

Author Bio: Lea Carpenter graduated summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa from Princeton and earned an MBA from Harvard, where she was valedictorian. A founding editor of Zoetrope and a former deputy publisher of The Paris Review, she launched Think, See, Feel where she writes the English Lessons blog as well as being a blogger for Big Think, which has two million unique visitors a month.

Summary: From the Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, a haunting collection of poems, graced by his dark humor and wit as he comes closer to the end of his writing life.

In these riveting poems, Wright declares, "I've said all that / I had to say. / In writing. / I signed my name. / It's death's move." As he faces cancer, the poet finds a new elation and clarity on the page, handing over for our examination the ruinously flawed yet kneeling-in-gratitude self he has become. Summary: This bold, insightful book argues that America today towers as the most philosophical culture in the history of the world, an unprecedented marketplace for truth and debate.

With verve and keen intelligence, Carlin Romano-Pulitzer Prize finalist, award-winning book critic, and professor of philosophy-takes on the widely held belief that the United States is an anti-intellectual country. Instead he provides a richly reported overview of American thought, arguing that ordinary Americans ...

Summary: A lively, comprehensive history of financial crashes in American history—and a concise explanation of the little-understood principles that caused them all.

Pundits will argue that the 2008 financial crisis was the first crash in American history driven by consumer debt. But in this spirited, highly engaging account, Scott Reynolds Nelson demonstrates that consumer debt has underpinned almost every major financial panic in the nation's history. From William Duer's attempts to profit of...

Summary: From the bestselling author of Desert Queen, a captivating biography of America's first female tycoon.

No woman in the Gilded Age made as much money as Hetty Green. At the time of her death in 1916, she was worth at least 100 million dollars, equal to about 2.5 billion dollars today. Abandoned at birth by her neurotic mother, scorned by her misogynist father, Hetty set out as a child to prove her value. Following the simple rules of her wealthy Quaker father, she successfully invested ...
