

Meet the characters from InvestiGATORS

MANGO

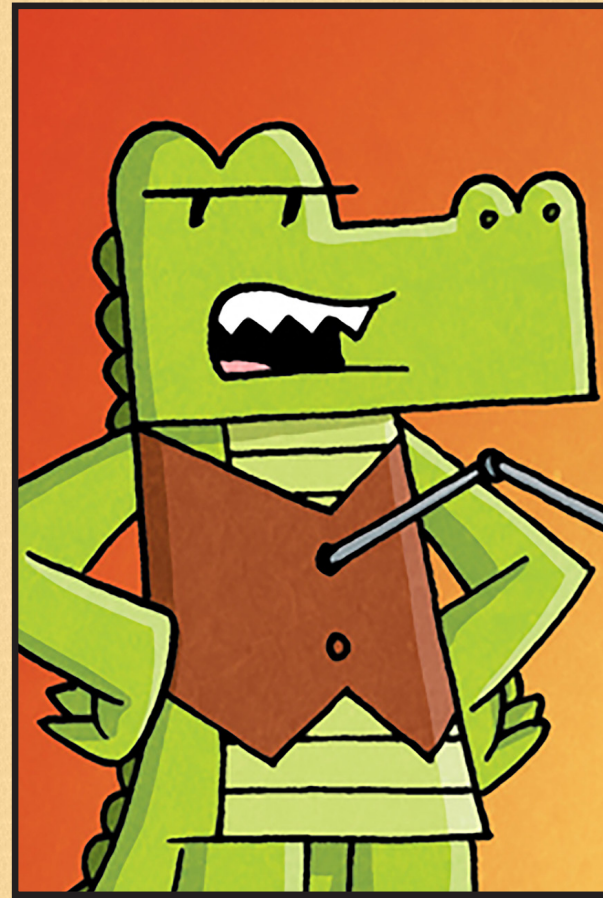

Rank: InvestiGator

Specialty: Thinking outside the box, even if that means sometimes not thinking inside his head.

Fun Fact: One of Mango's favorite desserts is celery ice cream with peanut butter chips.

General Inspector says: "Mango may seem like a goofball, but he's loyal and resourceful, characteristics that make him an ideal S.U.I.T. agent."

BRASH

Rank: InvestiGator

Specialty: Doing things by the book, though occasionally skipping over a page or two.

Fun Fact: Brash's love of solving mysteries began when he was little and was ranked #1 Seeker in his kindergarten's hide-and-seek championship.

General Inspector says: "Brash's focus is always on the mission, and with his analytical mind, he gets the job done."

CILANTRO

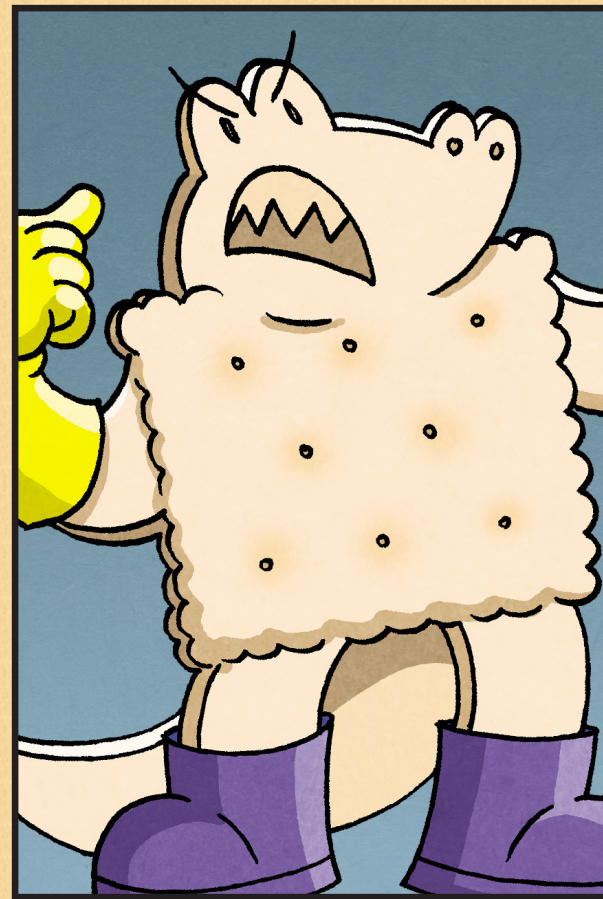

Rank: Field Agent

Specialty: Designing virtual missions for the S.U.I.T. training simulator.

Fun Fact: Speaking of virtual, Cilantro can turn virtually invisible!

General Inspector says: "Cilantro has the potential to be a top S.U.I.T. agent. I look forward to seeing her in the field someday. Or NOT seeing her, since she is a chameleon after all."

DARYL, AKA CRACKERDILE

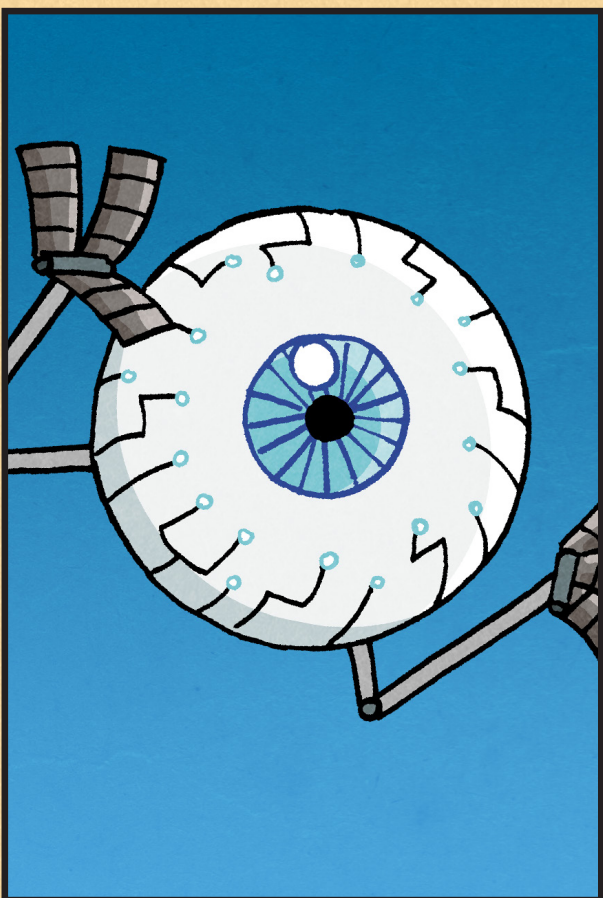

Rank: Former Agent / Supervillain

Specialty: Staying dry in a moist environment, which seems particularly hard for an absorbent cracker who lives in a damp sewer.

Fun Fact: Crackerdile is made of saltine dough contaminated with nuclear waste. So while he might be edible, he probably tastes terrible!

General Inspector says: "Daryl was our best agent, which makes Crackerdile S.U.I.T.'s worst enemy. He's not just a bad carb—he's EVIL!"

C-ORB

Rank: Computerized Ocular Robotic Butler

Specialty: Relaying messages to agents and making sure they don't get lost within the cavernous hallways of S.U.I.T. headquarters.

Fun Fact: C-ORB has multiple retractable arms that can extend whenever there's the need to hold or grab something.

General Inspector says: "C-ORB doesn't blink, so there's nothing that spy-ball can't see!"

G.I. MOE (THAT'S ME!)

Rank: General Inspector

Specialty: Can smell crime from miles away, thanks to my metal nose.

Fun Fact: Often thinking about food or laundry (especially warm socks). Very proud of my #1 Spy trophy.

General Inspector says: "Nobody puts their nose to the grindstone like me. Probably because no one else needs to polish their metal nose to make it nice and shiny!"
